

Communication Required for Various Occupations

Work	Speaking	Listening	Writing	Reading	Representing	Viewing
Emergency Medical Attendant	Speaking to patients, to hospital staff, and to other EMAs must be clear, precise, accurate, and as brief as possible	Calls coming in to the EMA's radio must be listened to very carefully	Reports to fill out after each call, to leave with the main office and the hospital	Reports of calls made by other attendants Written instructions Manuals for operating equipment Trade publications (magazines, newsletters)	Mapping emergency routes Constructing diagrams of treatment of injury (areas of body)	Understanding maps, charts symbols, graphs
Automotive Service Technician
Financial Planning Consultant
Fashion Designer						